1988(6): Marin General Hospital completely banned cigarette smoking as of September 1st, 1988. Other major hospitals did likewise around this time.

In "Marin Hospital With a Special Sensitivity," by Torri Minton, San Francisco Chronicle, (April 7, 1989) the cigarette problem in hospitals is mentioned.

By 1992 smoking bans were so common that there was a full-page ad for Wrigley's Spearmint chewing gum in the May 19, 1992 issue of Modern Healthcare, a magazine for hospital administrators. The ad stated: "since smoking isn't allowed in your hospital, make sure you have plenty of Wrigley's Spearmint Gum to see you through."
